ABOUT THE COMMUNITY

Summit County, Colorado, combines world-class outdoor recreation with vibrant mountain communities and convenient access to the Denver metropolitan area. Located in the Colorado Rockies less than 75 miles west of Denver, the county offers residents an extraordinary opportunity to live and work amid some of Colorado's most celebrated mountain destinations.

Year-round recreation is central to life in Summit County. Breckenridge, Keystone, Copper Mountain, and Arapahoe Basin offer premier winter recreation, while warmer months bring hiking, mountain biking, fishing, boating, camping, and other activities throughout Dillon Reservoir and the surrounding White River National Forest. Residents also enjoy more than 300 days of sunshine annually.

The area is more than a resort destination. Its distinct communities offer strong schools, local services, cultural activities, restaurants, shopping, and community events. Festivals and gatherings such as the Dillon Farmers Market and Silverthorne First Friday contribute to the county's strong community identity.

Summit County also offers mountain living without complete isolation. Denver, its metropolitan amenities, and a major international airport are within a comfortable drive. Summit Fire & EMS itself is deeply woven into this community, making the Chief of Department a highly visible public-service leader.
